TOBACCO CONTROL SIGNING CEREMONY

4 MAY 2013

Dr. the Hon KO Wing Man, BBS, JP

*Member, Executive Council
Secretary for Food and Health
HKSAR*

It is with great pleasure that I extend my congratulations to the nursing colleagues who are conferred Fellowship of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing today. In celebration of the International Nurses Day, I also wish to express my gratitude and respect to all nurses both in Hong Kong and all over the world for their commitment and dedication to the care of the community.

Nurses have all along been playing an integral role in various stages of healthcare delivery. In primary healthcare, nurses are actively involved in disseminating health promotion and disease prevention advice to the public. The nursing care given by nurses both at the curative and rehabilitative stage is instrumental to the patients' recovery.

In Hong Kong, the increasing challenges to our healthcare system posed by the growing and ageing population call for our nurses as well as other healthcare professionals to further stretch their limit and capabilities to enhance their contribution. The opportunities offered by the PHKAN for our nurses to strengthen their knowledge in various specialties definitely support them in facing the above challenges as well as moving towards professional excellence.

On this special occasion, may I wish the Provisional Academy every success in its future endeavour.

PATRON'S ADDRESS

Dr. LEONG Che Hung, GBM, GBS, OBE, JP

Patron, The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing

Time flies. It has been a year since the inauguration of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN). It has been my great pleasure to witness and take part in the historical process of the formation of the Academy. It is exciting to share the joy, energy, and enthusiasm of the dedicated nurses toward their profession for the benefits of the patients they serve. On this auspicious occasion of the Annual Fellowship Conferment I would like to extend my warmest congratulations to the PHKAN on its achievement and my sincere compliment to all nurses in Hong Kong for their unfailing commitment to the provision of high quality healthcare services to the community.

The trends of aging population, and chronic illnesses, together with emerging new diseases such as H7N9 place increasing demands on healthcare resources. During this challenging era of healthcare, more than ever, nurses play an important role in sustaining a healthy community. Professional nurses need to keep abreast of their knowledge and skills so that they remain to be competent at all times. Advanced practice nurses are clinical leaders they are accountable for providing quality care to the clients in their specialty area. In order to achieve the best professional standards, advanced nursing practice has to be supported with postgraduate education, continuous specialty training and eventually legal protection of the title. Nurses occupy the highest number in the healthcare team. It is a logical to have differentiation of practice so that the more experienced nurses with demonstrated competence can be recognized in the healthcare team in partnership with other specialists in medicine or other disciplines to provide high quality of care to patients in need. The PHKAN takes on the mission to recognize these advanced practice nurses and ensuring their competence to protect the well being of the public.

The establishment of the PHKAN is an initial step to a journey with the ultimate goal of establishing the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing with statutory status. I encourage all the nurses in Hong Kong to work together diligently towards this noble goal, for the nursing profession as well as the strength of the healthcare team in Hong Kong. The ultimate purpose is to provide safe and quality healthcare to the community of Hong Kong in par with international standards. I wish the PHKAN another fruitful year, and reaching the goal to attain the statutory status of HKAN soon!

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

It is an extraordinary privilege for me to extend my warmest welcome as President to all of you, our honorable guests, friends, and Fellows of the Academy. PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Development Committee, apart from deliberation on continuing education system development has initiated the formation of expert panels, with an aim to prepare the position statements of the Academy for relevant healthcare issues and readiness for media relations. The Fund Raising Committee is all geared up to raise substantial funds for the Academy future development and the Promotion and Public Relations Committee are well prepared for extensive community outreach and partnership with government, public organizations and NGOs in health and professional promotion. We are particularly excited about our collaboration with Hong Kong Council on Smoking and Health, together with PHKAN, will launch the Nurses Initiatives on Tobacco Control in Hong Kong to demonstrate our shared commitment in protecting the public health. The Annual Health Carnival held on 6 April, in response and support of the World Health Day was a great success in serving the community. Also, thanks to the devotion and unsparing support of our Hon. Secretary and our Hon. Treasurer. We are grateful for the premises at the PMH and with some fundamental refurbishment the administration and the Academy Colleges have a reasonable office to start their operations. We are hopeful that the redecoration of the conference room will be completed this summer and will be able to invite you all for house warming gatherings.

Our top priority will still be sharing and solving challenges to work towards the HKAN statutory status. We have confidence that with the support of the Secretary and Under Secretary of Food and Health Bureau, our Task Force on legislation for HKAN will commit fully in the process. We need to get all nurses, our fellows, stakeholders and friends on board to share our passion and vision. I know that even when the challenge is positive, we need to communicate and consult with no reservation. We can introduce three ways to approach and introduce our challenges to make it more palatable:

1. Focus on joy and positives. Indeed, focus on the positives of the new development and the joy people will derive from it. Many of our Fellows share the joy of this newfound status and are eager to contribute to the profession.
2. Create the crowd. Let's involve all our Fellows, as they are the role model and respected colleagues of many nurses. I trust our Fellows will be mentors to provide guidance for their colleagues and willing to build up the Colleges together.
3. Harness momentum. We need to sustain the momentum and the desire to uplift the image of our profession and serve our community with unwavering devotion.

We are a team so let us move forward together with purpose, determination and passion. And let us write together a glorious chapter in the Academy's history. Thank you, and "March On," always!

On behalf of the Hong Kong Academy of Medicine, it gives me great pleasure to extend our heartiest congratulations to the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN) on the occasion of your Annual Fellowship Conferment and as you celebrate the International Nurses Day.

Hong Kong is well-known in the region of having a robust healthcare system staffed with well-trained healthcare professionals. Our citizens enjoy being amongst the longest living individuals in the world according to recent figures. Nurses are critical in maintaining a healthy society, and the role they play has evolved significantly over the last decades. Besides working collaboratively with doctors and other healthcare workers to provide essential services and care to patients, nurses also help promote health and educate the public on the prevention of illnesses. They are key players in the multidisciplinary primary care team.

Nursing is becoming a dynamic field that offers career opportunities at different levels. Nurse education in many parts of the world is also undergoing the process of diversification towards advancement and specialization. Like the Academy of Medicine, the mission and vision of the PHKAN is to maintain a high standard in the profession through specialist training and continuing education. With growing expectations from the public and a rapidly aging population, it is crucial to ensure the delivery of professional health care and services of high international standards.

May I congratulate the newly admitted Fellows, who will face exciting challenges in the years ahead. May I also wish your Academy all the best in its future development as well as great success in all its endeavors.

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGES

Prof. PANG Mei Che, Samantha

*Chairman, Nursing Council of Hong Kong
Advisor, The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing*

Ten years ago when SARS visited Hong Kong, local nurses had shown to world their strong sense of professionalism and commitment to care in times of adversity. Today, we continue to feel proud of our nurses for these admirable attributes that sustain the healthcare system for quality service provision. Today, Hong Kong does not encounter the issue of attracting new blood to the nursing profession as evidenced by the popularity of nursing programmes for both enrolled and registered nurse preparation, but we are facing the nursing issue of low staff morale and high turnover intention.

Recent surveys on nurses' perceived work environments consistently revealed that local nurses place a high value on professionalism but they are less satisfied with their work conditions due to constraints in healthcare practices and inadequate staffing and resource. The majority of nurses agree that nursing is challenging because of its work nature which involves people's lives, health, and wellbeing. They express that the more they can do for the patient, the higher they find satisfaction at work. They would feel good as well as welcome the experiential opportunities in gaining knowledge and competencies that can improve patient care. However, they meet with a mismatch in the reality of practice due to multi-faceted responsibilities as well as misalignment of work assignments with professional competencies, rendering them unable to put the priorities to direct patient care management, the facet of responsibility that they value most. Indeed, confusion about the roles and competencies expected of nurses with different credentials is not a surprise as Hong Kong has yet to formalize a professional preparation and advancement structure that can duly recognize nurses' levels of education and clinical expertise. Having made this note, I am optimistic about the future of nursing because our strong sense of professionalism, as exemplified by the setting up of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing, is driving the change.

My congratulations to all fellows who receive their conferment this year, and hopefully, in concerted effort, we will witness the transition of the Academy from the current provisional status to become an enduring establishment.

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGES

Ms. HAU Wai Lei, Florence

*Chairman, Midwives Council of Hong Kong

It is with great pleasure that I offer this congratulatory message to the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing on its second Fellowship Conferment ceremony. It has been a year since its inauguration. I can still remember the pride and joy we shared on 12 May 2012. I like to extend my heartfelt thanks to the Council members and all those who have continued their unfailing endeavor to lay a solid foundation for the PHKAN to take on further.

Before writing this message, I was reading the Annual report 2012 of the PHKAN. I was really impressed by all that you have achieved in the past year. Each piece of achievements has marked your dedication and commitment to advance the nursing profession for a better and healthier Hong Kong. I am sure your passion will inspire nurses and midwives to strive for a higher standard of education and practice, and a stronger health care team.

I like to take this opportunity to wish the PHKAN every success in moving forward towards a Statutory Academy of Nursing in Hong Kong. The process may not be easy. But let's work together to make this dream come true.

Nursing practice is a critical and indispensable part of health care in all settings, in the entire continuum of primary to rehabilitative care. CONGRATULATORY MESSAGES

Ms. CHILDE, Jessie

*Principal
School of General Nursing (1982-1995)
Honorary Fellow 2013*

Congratulations to Dr. Susie Lum, the President, and All Fellows & Members of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing! You have extended Florence Nightingale's vision and dedication in the advancement of quality nursing service to the people of Hong Kong.

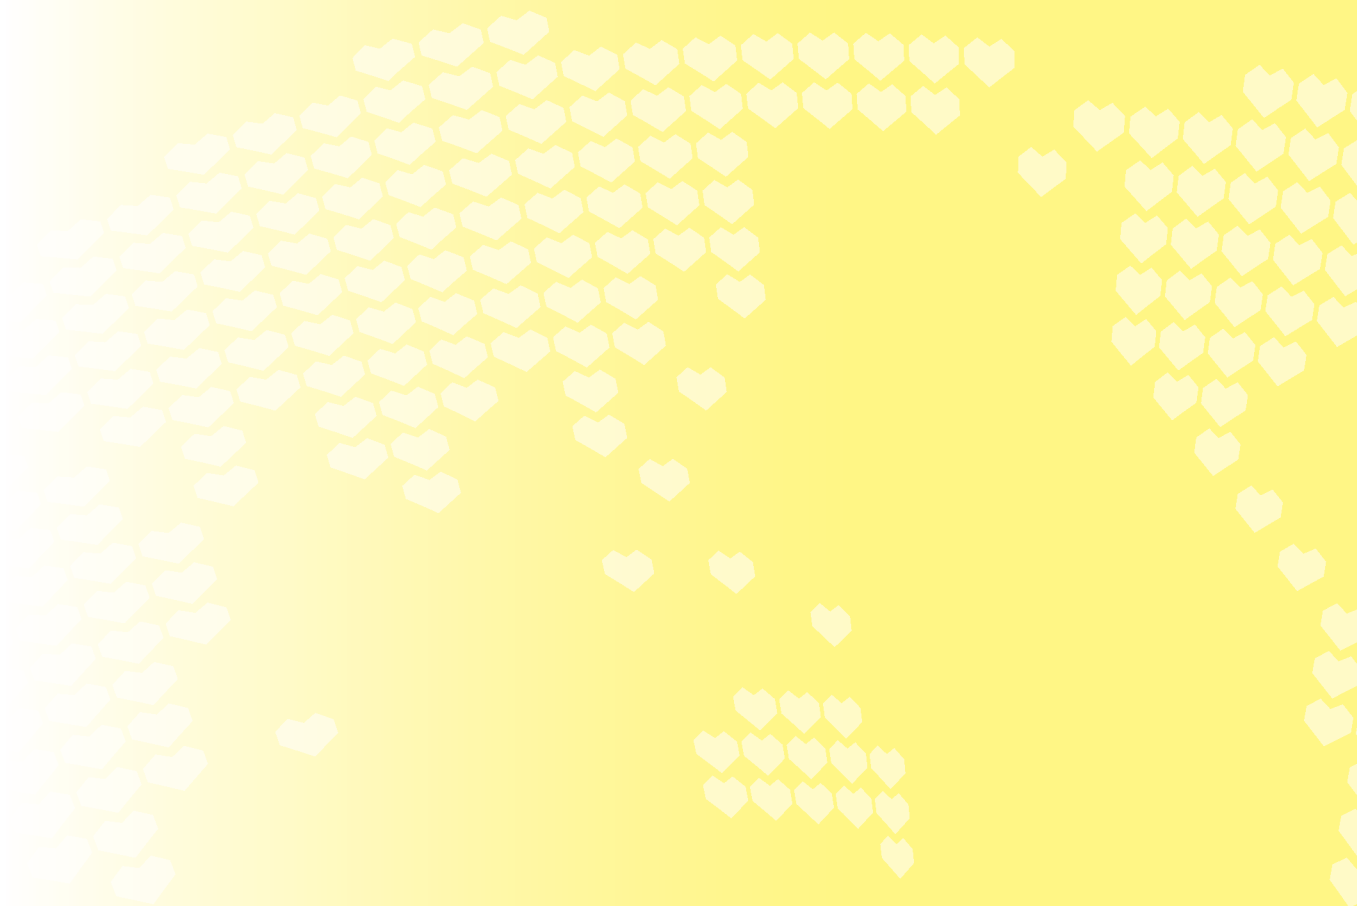

May the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing instill the "DNA" of innovative nursing knowledge and skills into new nurses, who join our ranks! May the Academy generate future nurses, who will become the "stem cells" that enhance human resilience and healthy lifestyle! Let the sharing of nursing expertise and ideals of the Academy inspire all professional nurses in their quest for nursing excellence.

Like millions of human cells we will mature continuously, connect and code the blueprint of nursing differentiations, so that each College truly meets the special needs of those whom we care for, as well as those to whom we come into contact. Although the Cerebral Cells and Cardiac Cells are always in the limelight, let us salute too, the vital frontline cells that silently maintain our many healthcare functions.

In the late 60s & 70s of the last century, classes of my young student nurses laughed at the mention of living up to one hundred years, yet some of them are now looking after centenarians. We have now reached the stage of peaceful coexistence, and deeper appreciation of our planet's natural resources. The Academy's stance on tobacco-control is a major step towards the building of a healthier environment.

Thank you so much for conferring this honour to me, though I regret that caregiving at home has prevented me from attending in person the Academy's ceremony for conferring the Honorary Fellowship, and the celebration of the International Nurses' Day in Hong Kong. Nevertheless, this honour fills me and my family with great delight, and we will cherish it with pride.

NURSING CHARTER ON TOBACCO CONTROL

NURSING CHARTER ON TOBACCO CONTROL

The nurses pledge to

- be role models of being non-smokers
- assess and arrange a smoker to quit smoking
- give health advice on the harms of smoking to the public.

It is evident that smoking, either active or passive, is hazardous to health and earlier death can be prevented if smoking has been quitted. The healthcare resources are huge to manage the smoking-related diseases. In fact, the low smoking rate of Hong Kong, at 11.1 % as at 2011, must be one of the very crucial factors to make the longevity of Hong Kong people being the first, if not the first, in the world. Needless to say, the benefits brought by a smoke-free environment are tangible and enormous.

The nurses are the largest group of health-care workers in the industry and our efforts play an important role in helping the people acquire better health and higher quality of life if a smoke-free Hong Kong is promoted through the dedicated efforts of the nurses. Recognizing the indispensable role of the nurses in the subject, the Hong Kong Council on Smoking and Health (COSH) mastered the opportunity, after the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN) was established in 2012, to start discussing with the PHKAN on our concerted efforts of the 14 Colleges of the PHKAN on tobacco control. A steering group was formed afterwards to formulate a plan for a charter, which will be signed by the Presidents of the 14 Colleges, to be witnessed by the Secretary for Food and Health and the Chairman of the COSH, with the support for it from the Hospital Authority and the Department of Health, on 4 May 2013. With the funding support from the COSH, various projects, focusing on quitting smoking, public education, nurses training and survey, will be executed by the 14 Colleges after the signing of the charter. The details of the programmes are listed below to achieve the pledge of the Charter.

It is expected the smoker patients, the public & the nurses will be benefitted from the various programmes. We shall be close to the vision of a smoke-free Hong Kong!

Nurses' Development – to address the Millennium Development Goals – the Regional perspective

Of the eight Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) agreed to by world leaders at the United Nations (UN) General Assembly in 2000 to alleviate extreme poverty by 2015, three of them are specifically related to health. In Hong Kong, while there is undoubted progress in achieving the MDGs, a number of challenges remain. Despite the fact that the maternal mortality ratio is generally on a decreasing trend, it has fluctuated between 1.0 and 11.2 per 100,000 live births from 1981 to 2012. The re-emergence of communicable diseases and the new global epidemic of non-communicable diseases (NCDs) have become a significant threat to human health and development.

As the largest group of health care professionals in the world and the ones who spend the most time with patients during the care process, nurses play a key role in the achievement of the MDGs. Through enhancement of professional knowledge and skills, better collaboration with other healthcare professions, nurses may break through existing barriers and challenges to deliver the MDGs and meet the health needs of the marginalized and underprivileged communities in the Region. Nurses' engagement in health advocacy and lobbying will also shape the new agenda for the health and wellbeing of the global community.

Nurses' Contribution towards Millennium Development Goals – Perspective from a frontline Nurse Consultant

In 2000, eight millennium development goals (MDG) were developed to eradicate poverty and improve the well-being using a holistic approach.

Out of the 8 MDGs, Goal 4 is targeted to reduce mortality rate of children under five years of age.

It is believed that nurses play an important role in disease prevention, health promotion, life-saving intervention and rehabilitation through a holistic, interdisciplinary approach. As child cannot be separated from his/her family, thus reduction in child mortality rate could only be successful with involvement of the family taking both ethnicity and cultural aspect into consideration. As a result, nurses have to take a family-centered approach during the care delivery process. They have to empower and partner with the family thus contribute to better child health and reduction in death among children under age five.

Healthcare and societal advancement have resulted in marked decrease in child mortality in developed countries. Nursing practice evolves with time. To this end, it is therefore especially important for nurses to be competent in technological sense and knowledge base, to adopt the best available evidence and to strive for clinical excellence.

Tobacco Control in the Millennium

Since the enactment of the Smoking (Public Health) Ordinance in 1982, the Government has adopted a progressive and multi-pronged approach to tighten the control on smoking. These tobacco control measures echoed the six MPOWER measures released by the World Health Organization (WHO) in 2008, which are proven to be the effective ways to combat the global tobacco epidemic..

WHO emphasizes the important role of healthcare professionals in the global tobacco control effort and they are at the forefront of safeguarding public health. Nurses in Hong Kong are dedicated to and impactful in building a smoke-free Hong Kong. For example, they supported the expansion of no-smoking areas and raising tobacco tax, as well as encouraging smoking patients to kick the habit.

Hong Kong Council on Smoking and Health (COSH), together with The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN), are going to launch the Nurses Initiatives on Tobacco Control to show our commitment. A series of programmes will be organized to gather support from all levels of nurses and motivate them to take a proactive role on tobacco control; to promote smoke-free messages to the general public, as well as to facilitate the frontline nurses as change agent to encourage the patients to quit smoking.

Achievements in the Past Year

1. PHKAN Office

With the genuine support from the Princess Margaret Hospital (PMH) and Hospital Authority, PHKAN has been licensed the use of the nursing school office at PMH as the operating office for the PHKAN and Academy Colleges. Renovation works had been completed in last November. It provides offices for the Secretariat and Academy Colleges, as well as the meeting places for our Committees and Fellow members.

2. Operation Handbook

Since the PHKAN is to establish the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (HKAN), The PHKAN Council serves to undertake preparatory work in constructing the infrastructure and PHKAN regulatory mechanism and to make way for the impending HKAN. The handbook details the operation structure of PHKAN with its missions, objectives, functions, membership and academy colleges.

3. Accreditation Manual

Following the incorporation of PHKAN on 6 October 2011, the Accreditation Committee was set up to set standards and criteria for the accreditation of professional organizations to be Academy Colleges. In order to ensure the Academy College has attained the required standards for a nursing specialty, an Accreditation Manual has been developed to stipulate the systems required for design and implementation of education program, examination and certification for the advanced practice of the specialty concerned.

4. Membership Database

In order to maintain a versatile membership system, the Registration and Membership Committee has designed a database for all Fellow members for PHKAN as well as for individual Academy Colleges. The database serves as nursing specialist registry as well as monitoring tool for continuing nursing education of the Fellow members.

5. Connection with Fellow Members

With the large number of potential and admitted Fellow members of PHKAN, maintaining continuous exchange with members has always been the target of the Council. The PHKAN has committed to publish Newsletters at regular basis to provide progress and up-to-date information to members. The PHKAN website has undergone a revamp to constructing a friendly platform to enhance interactions with members. Apart from disseminating information, visit to the HK Academy of Medicine, open forums and sharing seminars had also been organized.

6. Pursuance for Charitable Status

Upon the incorporation of the PHKAN, application to Inland Revenue Department (IRD) for the charitable status under IRD 88 had been made. With reference from the HK Academy of Medicine, we shall provide the information to IRD as required. The charitable status is important for tax exemption and to raise funds for the future development of the PHKAN.

THE PROVISIONAL HONG KONG ACADEMY OF NURSING

7. Participation in Policy Issues

For issues interested to the health of people of Hong King, PHKAN has submitted views on Regulation of medical beauty treatments/procedures; Hong Kong Code of Marketing and Quality of Formula Milk and Related Products, and Food Products for Infants & Young Children.

8. Community Involvement

One of the objectives of the PHKAN is to enrich the public knowledge on health. The PHKAN collaborated with all nursing communities in Hong Kong has organized public health programs to promote the World Health Day every year. On 15 April 2012, Health Carnival – Good Health Add Years to Life had brought all specialties together to conduct health talks and check with educational booths for the general public in Shatin New Town Plaza. The 2013 Health Carnival on 6 April has continued to raise public awareness of heart attacks and strokes along with World Health Organization's theme: High Blood Pressure. As from 4 May, a series of events to promote a smoke-free community will be launched after the signing of the Nursing Charter on Tobacco Control co-organized by the Hong Kong Council on Smoking and Health.
