CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE

Mr. POON Yan Wing Lawrence

*Chief Nurse Executive
Hospital Authority*

Since 1974, the International Council of Nurses has attributed 12 May of every year to the contribution made by nurses to healthcare industry worldwide. It is also a special day for all of us in the profession to recollect the legacy of the great nursing heroine Florence Nightingale. On this same day, I would like to convey my heartfelt congratulations to the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (HKAN) on the celebration of its Annual Fellowship Conferment cum International Nurses Day (IND) 2019.

To every new fellow of the HKAN, I am highly impressed not only by your passionate dedication for betterment of patient care, but also by your admirable commitment in pursuit of professional advancement. Without your wholehearted enthusiasm and perseverance, our profession will remain stagnant forever.

The theme for IND this year is 'Nurses A Voice to Lead – Health for All'. Health in this context does not only refer to the accessibility of healthcare service, but a state of physical and mental wellbeing that enables one to lead a productive and meaningful life in the community. With full confidence in our nurses, who are committed to providing quality service and advanced practice, I am sure that you will definitely improve health of patients, while at the same time, continue to excel professionally. May I take this opportunity to thank everyone with applause and warmest regards for your incessant effort in serving our patients and the community at large.

My hat's off to you all and happy International Nurses Day!

PATRON'S ADDRESS

Dr. LEONG Che Hung, GBM, GBS, OBE, JP

Patron, The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing

I write to congratulate the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing in organising today's Fellowship Conferment Ceremony on the International Nursing Day and to salute the new fellows.

The nursing profession is an important member of the health care team being always in the most frontline of patient's care. While the honourable role of a nurse has remained unchanged ever since the days of Florence Nightingale, medical science has advanced so much that today, nurses like any professionals cannot be a Jack of all Trades, and specialization must be the way forward.

The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing therefore provides the role of setting standards to training specialty nurses and to accredit them to the benefit of the patients they serve.

I look forward to the Academy advancing by leaps and bounds as it moves in the years to come.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Professor WONG Kam Yuet Frances

President, The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing

It is a pleasure and honour to greet you in the capacity of the President of The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing on the Nurses Day. The Academy is embarking on the 8th year of her journey striving for one single mission, that is, to attain regulatory status of advanced practising nurses for the protection of the public and advancement of the profession.

Over the years, I followed the work of advanced practice nurses in different specialties. I learn that these advanced practice nurses have done wonderful work for the patients and contributed greatly to the healthcare system. The following remark is often heard: the employer-provided specialty training courses have already served the purpose in equipping nurses with specialty skills. The implied question is: Is HKAN requiring a standard that is too high? Many Fellows have rightly responded that the employer-led training mainly focused on the technical skills that well meet immediate service needs. In order to enhance professionalism of advanced practice nurses in the respective specialties, the nurses need to possess critical thinking supported by knowledge and skills with breadth and depth. The complexity of patient conditions today requires the nurse to be astute and manage clinical circumstances with dexterity. The standards and length of the specialty programs should benchmark with international requirements.

A British science fiction writer, Sir Arthur Clarke once said, 'It's not trespassing to go beyond your own boundaries. The only way to determine the boundaries of the possible is to go beyond these boundaries.' As human beings, we break through our boundaries and optimize our potential for one's own fulfillment. As a profession, we optimize and actualize for the betterment of mankind.

I extend my heartfelt congratulations to all 34 Fellows today who well deserve the honor they have earned. I express appreciation to the Honorary Fellows conferred this year, Madam Law Lan, Mr. Jackson Yiu and Dr. Denise Bryant-Lukosius who all have contributed to the nursing profession in different ways, in Hong Kong and world-wide.

This is a happy day to celebrate and especially for the College Presidents, mentors and the supervisors, this is a day that you should be proud of. The success of Fellows reflects your relentless efforts of coaching and encouragement in nurturing the younger generation.

I wish you all a Happy Nurses' Day and Mother's Day!

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE

Dr. HUGHES Frances, JP, ONZM

*Director, Global Strategic Initiatives CGFNS International
Advisor, The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing*

It is with great pleasure and honour as Advisor to the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (HKAN) that I send you a special greeting on this special day. It is time to reflect on nursing and reflect on the work we do and the difference we make to patients, families, communities and our nation.

Nursing is well positioned to lead and influence outcomes for our patients. Every day we have thousands of examples of difference we make.

Leadership is key to this. We can all agree that 'leadership' is an essential practice, but it remains a concept that has different meanings irrespective of the particular nursing discipline in which we work. Nursing leadership is a critical part of the ways in which we address issues facing people with mental illness and in the ways in which mental health services are developed and delivered. It is central to the ways in which change is managed and in our relationships with other health professionals, with our consumers and their families and with the public and the political system (Hughes, 2006).

Leadership is not always associated with a formal title (e.g. manager) and can happen within or between services; between colleagues and external to formal management or accountability structures. At its most narrow definition, leadership is reliant on formal hierarchical structures and provides little scope for the development of excellence. However, at its best, leadership has the potential to provide positive change.

A useful definition of 'leadership' involves understanding that it is a process ordinary people use when they are bringing forth the best from themselves and others (Nursing Now, 2005). In this context, leadership is not reliant on formal structures, but is based on a series of themes, including

- Courage
- Change
- Vision and goal setting
- Enabling and inspiring
- Enlisting others to get things done
- Relationships
- Honesty and integrity; and
- Fostering leadership in others (Nursing Now 2005).

With growing evidence about the burden of disease, and disparities in health status of those with mental illness, it is important that nursing take a more active role in addressing this key health issue. Nurses are an important component of the health and disability workforce and in many countries they are the most common providers of health care (WHO, 2010). As such, they are well-placed to tackle the issues facing mental health consumers and their families, and to provide a 'point of reference' for other health professionals and health care workers. Mental health nursing is a specialist area, and combines professional therapeutic people skills with technical skills. This combination involves specialist, evidenced-based knowledge, skills and attitudes in patient observation, assessment, individual and group interventions and care. Nurses also provide support to families and communities and work within a wider health team with other disciplines.

As leaders, we must have the courage to respond to challenges and build the resilience needed to ensure that our responses are timely and appropriate. Such challenges arise at all levels - policy, legislation, service delivery and through our relationships with our clients and various communities. Not only should we be prepared to address these many challenges, but we should have sufficient strength to welcome them, honesty and integrity to face them, and courage to address them.

I congratulate HKAN for this occasion and like to thank you for keeping on doing what you do - providing leadership to make a difference. Congratulations!

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE

Professor LAU Chak Sing

*President, Hong Kong Academy of Medicine
Advisor, The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing*

On behalf of the Hong Kong Academy of Medicine, I would like to congratulate The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (HKAN) on its Fellowship Conferment Ceremony. I am also pleased to extend my warmest congratulations to the Organising Committee of 2019 International Nurses Day on this festive occasion.

Nurses are at the heart of the healthcare system across the globe and play an essential part in the multidisciplinary team nowadays, not just providing care to patients but also advocating better healthcare for the community. As suggested by the International Council of Nurses, the theme of this year's International Nurses Day, "Nurses: A Voice to Lead - Health for All", focuses on the need for nurses to become more active and vocal in policy development and implementation. It is important for nurses to help contribute to achieve Health for All, i.e. a complete state of physical and mental health that enables a person to lead a socially and economically productive life.

As we celebrate the contribution of our nursing profession, I would like to applaud the efforts made by the HKAN in upholding the highest standard of nurse specialist training and clinical practice in Hong Kong. Congratulations to the new Fellows on reaching this significant milestone, and my sincere tribute to all nurses around the world for their dedication and selfless contribution in providing quality and humanised care to the community!

Advisor, The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing
Honorary Fellow 2013*

I deeply regret not being with you in person to commemorate the eighth annual fellowship conferral of the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (HKAN) and celebration of International Nurses Day 2019. The theme of this year's International Nurses Day is A Voice to Lead: Health for All and this focus dovetails nicely with one of the major goals of the HKAN's strategic plan Shaping Health Policies for the Wellbeing of the Public. The HKAN has been committed to health promotion since its founding and has actively promoted anti-smoking strategies and an Annual Health Carnival.

In keeping with this year's theme, I strongly support everything that the HKAN is doing to move forward the development of and proper regulation of Advanced and Specialised Nursing Practice. I have witnessed firsthand how intensely the HKAN has worked in the last 15 years to establish and develop advanced nursing practice in Hong Kong. The HKAN is the only professional body in Hong Kong that has done the ground work in setting standards and building mechanisms for advanced nursing practice with the involvement of nurse leaders and clinical experts from both the public and private sectors. The HKAN now has 2700 Fellows associated with 14 Academy Colleges, representing essentially all nursing specialties in practice in Hong Kong. It works closely and collaboratively with the universities, Hospital Authority, and private hospitals to facilitate education and clinical training to equip candidates to become Members and Fellows. The HKAN has developed a clear conceptual framework with specified competencies, educational standards, and assessment criteria for certifying nurses who are performing at the advanced practice level in specified specialty areas on par with international standards. The next step is for the Government to formalize the role of HKAN to expedite the work of regulating advanced and specialised nursing practice in Hong Kong.

My warmest congratulations to all who are being inducted this year as Fellows. Your work speaks volumes about the wisdom and vibrancy that is the HKAN.

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE

*Chief Executive Officer
The Australian Nursing and Midwifery Accreditation Council
Advisor, The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing*

It is with great pleasure that I extend my warmest congratulations to the nursing colleagues who are conferred Fellowship of the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing on May 11, 2019. May 12 is the birthday of Florence Nightingale and the celebration of International Nurses Day. The theme this year is "Nurses A Voice to Lead : Health for all" with an aim of nurses being essential in transforming health care and health systems.

Nursing is centre stage currently through the three global campaign of Nursing now, which is aiming to improve health by raising the profile and status of nursing worldwide.

You will be joining an organisation that promotes excellence in nursing particularly through the advancement of specialist nursing practice and education. It is highly important and commendable that nurses in Hong Kong actively pursue continuous education and professional development to uphold nursing quality and healthcare standards. In this way you contribute to improving the health and wellbeing of the people of Hong Kong. You will also be required to provide leadership for the profession and support nursing research and knowledge that provides the greatest impact in health.

As the Chief Executive Officer of the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Accreditation Council (ANMAC), I understand the importance of setting standards for excellence in nursing and midwifery education. The contribution that nurses and midwives make to uphold the quality of education that leads to quality patient care cannot be underestimated.

Congratulations to you all once again and hope that you will become an active participant of the HKAN in the future.

Future Challenges

The Food and Health Bureau invited the Nursing Council of Hong Kong to formulate a Voluntary Scheme on Advanced and Specialized Nursing Practice to pave the way for setting up a statutory registration system in the long run. After attending the recent open consultation on Voluntary Scheme on Advanced and Specialized Nursing Practice, HKAN urged the Government to formalize the role of HKAN to expedite the work of promoting Advanced and Specialized Nursing Practice in Hong Kong. The HKAN has been established for over 10 years and has done the ground work for setting up mechanism for Advanced Nursing Practice with the involvement of nurse leaders and clinical experts in both Public and Private sectors. The HKAN has set competency framework, education standards, assessment tools and certified nurses for advanced practice level in specialized areas. To facilitate the process of Statutory Regulation of Advanced Nursing Practice and to avoid duplication of effort from the Nursing Council of Hong Kong, the Government is urged to consider the HKAN should be the ONLY Regulatory and Official Body for certifying or accreditation of Advanced Nursing Practice in Hong Kong.

HONORARY FELLOWS

Mr. YIU Tsim Kong Jackson

The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing has admitted Mr. YIU Tsim Kong Jackson (姚瞻江) as Honorary Fellow

Mr. YIU began his nursing training in 1974 in Queen Mary Hospital (QMH). As a budding nurse, he was enthusiastic in performing his first debut street cardio-pulmonary resuscitation near student nurses quarters in Wan Chai. After graduated in 1977, he commenced his working experience in the Central Sterile Supply Department and rewarded him with a sound knowledge in logistics management and nursing administration for his future career development.

Mr. YIU started his emergency nursing career in 1979, he was brave to initiate his self-learnt "field triage" on the site near QMH during Typhoon Hope. He consolidated experiences in Surgical and Medical nursing during 1984-86 before receiving his emergency nursing training organized by the English National Board (United Kingdom) in 1986. After the overseas training and before he was promoted as a Nursing Officer in the Accident & Emergency Department (A&E) in 1990, he contributed lots of input and promulgated emergency nursing not only in A&E but to nurses in the whole hospital.

During 1991-94, Mr. YIU dawned on his career stage as the first Emergency Nurse Specialist in Hospital Authority (HA). As a catalyst, he developed and promoted the emergency nurse triage system which significantly brought emergency nurse assessment to another level. Lacuna in knowledge, he proceeded to be the first nurse in HA to attain the Advanced Cardiac Life Support course (ACLS) certificate. Since he embraced teaching, he prevailed as an ACLS instructor for the past 25 years and even up till today.

From 1994 to 1997, Mr. YIU was the Senior Nursing Office and Department Operations Manager of Yan Chai Hospital. Nothing can stop him from exploring in uncharted territory, with the collaboration of School of Clinical Nursing Specialties (the former of Institute of Advanced Nursing Studies) and A&E Coordinating Committee of HA, the first Certificate course in HA - the Emergency Nurse Certificate Course, developed by Mr. YIU was inaugurated in 1994.

Driven by curiosity, this local emergency pioneer self-arranged to pursue Trauma Nursing Core Course (TNCC) in Minnesota after which he introduced TNCC in 1997 followed by the establishment of the Hong Kong Emergency Nurse Association.

He continued to reach new horizons when he became the General Manager Nursing in Yan Chai Hospital-from 1997 till retirement. He committed to act as the Honorary Advisor of College of Emergency Nursing and Advisor to Specialty Advisory Group (Emergency Nursing) of HA in Hong Kong. Undeniably, Mr. YIU has created a major shift in culture and practice in the specialty of emergency nursing in Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong College of Perioperative Nursing

The Background

The Hong Kong College of Perioperative Nursing was established on 11 Apr 2012. As at today, there are 235 active fellows and 28 associate members. In the past years, the College has conducted numerous programmes to fulfill the founded objectives. In particular, to advance the knowledge and skill for perioperative nurses, the College conducted educational seminars periodically. In 2018, we have conducted 5 seminars covered all major subspecialties in perioperative care. The subjects included 'Clinical Sharing of Perfusion on Paediatric Cases'; 'Preoperative Nurse Anaesthetic Assessment'; 'Knowledge Update on Advanced Technology for Spinal Cord Surgery'; 'Endoscopic Tips for Nurses'; and 'Pain Management in Rehabilitation Occupational Therapy Perspective'. In addition to inviting our fellows to attend, we also opened the seminar to all interested OT nurses that work in HA or private hospitals. The response and feedback is excellent.

Our College would like to announce another important milestone we achieved. In addition to the current "Grandfather Fellow", a new breed of "Earned Fellow" shall be born in 2019 after successfully undertaken the follow training. We are anxiously looking for more new fellows joining our alliance thus collaborating better effort in bringing the perioperative care to a higher standard in Hong Kong. A slogan created by our colleagues from our last AGM can best describe our vision: "More pro, More trust, less worry. Less risk, less harm, don't be out!"

Abstract

Keynote Address:

The ANMAC's role in the Regulation of Advanced Nursing Practice in Australia

The role of health professionals has and is continuing to evolve to meet the increasing health demands of the community. The nursing profession has continued to enhance its contribution to health care by increasing the flexibility of their scope of practice. This presentation will explore some of the different aspects of advanced nursing practice and some of the different mechanisms for recognising advanced and specialised nursing practice. Australia's Nurse Practitioner role is one that incorporates advanced nursing practice and is regulated meaning that ANMAC has a role to play in the education of nurses at this level.
