President Message

I am delighted to welcome you all here on this auspicious day of the inauguration of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (the “PHKAN”). It is my great pleasure to celebrate and witness together with you the inauguration of the Academy and its 14 specialty academy colleges, as well as the conferment of honorary/founding fellows and fellows of the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing.

The aims of the PHKAN are: (1.) establish the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing as a statutory body to regulate the nursing profession; and (2.) enhance excellence in nursing service and health care in Hong Kong through promotion of specialist nursing education and practices. The actualization of the vision to establish an independent organization to regulate advanced specialty practice for the nursing profession started 6 years ago through the concerted efforts of nurse leaders, specialty nurses, and academics from different sectors. Leaders from all nursing specialties had worked day and night with their colleagues to complete the colossal task of accrediting the Academy Colleges and their fellows. My special thanks to our Secretariat and the Accreditation and Registration Teams who have laboured arduously under tight deadlines to complete the project on schedule and made this inauguration possible. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the honorary fellows, founding fellows, grandfather/grandmother fellows for their passion and significant contributions to the advancement of the nursing profession, and their tremendous support to the founding of PHKAN. I would also like to especially applaud Dr. C.H. Leong, our Patron, for his valuable guidance to the preparatory committee, and his vision and commitment to advance nursing practice and nursing education. My heartfelt thanks to the over 1,500 nurses and friends of nurses present here today - we could not have achieved this milestone without your enthusiastic support, endorsement and encouragement. I must also say thank you for allowing the opportunity, placing the trust and bestowing the honor on me to lead the founding of the PHKAN.

I would like to share with you the meaning of the PHKAN emblem. Its many symbols remind us of our core values and the mission the Academy is set to achieve.

- the “AN” logo at the centre stands for “Academy of Nursing”, the organization dedicated to the advancement of the nursing profession. It was used by the Preparatory Committee and is retained for use by the formal establishment.
- the lamp at the top is the symbol of Florence Nightingale. As you would have already knew, today is International Nurses Day, also Florence Nightingale’s birthday. As the enduring symbol of the nursing profession, it represents Nightingale’s virtues - kindness, gentleness, courage, and unswerving devotion to duty. It reminds the profession of its core values and society's expectations of quality nursing care. The lamp is glowing, i.e. the values and standards are not static – they advance along with the times.

Inauguration of the Provisional HK Academy of Nursing

- the open book at the bottom represents the pursuit of knowledge. Through research and education, we have to constantly seek and apply new theories and technology to our practices.
- the leaves signify life and growth, as well as connectivity - the collaboration among nursing specialties of the fourteen academy colleges.

The Hong Kong Academy of Nursing is the professional association established to govern nursing practices in Hong Kong. It is set up with two key objectives: first, to help nurses; and second, to help those they serve. It is to lead growth and advancement of the nursing profession, and promote collaboration and solidarity among nurse specialties. Secondly, it promotes the highest professional, ethical and governance standards in partnership with the Government and other professional bodies to provide nursing services of excellence to the community. The PHKAN's objectives can only be achieved if all of us - nurses, doctors, physiotherapists, academics, government officials, patient representatives in public or private hospitals - irrespective of our roles and responsibilities, work in close collaboration and devotion. This spirit of collaboration and fellowship was demonstrated in full force at the setting up of the PHKAN. I am confident that the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing, when formally established, will foster and promote this spirit to new heights.

The PHKAN's current priority is to establish the Academy as a statutory body and along with it, an ordinance enacted to empower the Academy to endow official accreditation to nursing professionals. Good progress has been made with the support and facilitation of the Government, other professional associations and the community. We are hopeful that the enactment process will start soon. The PHKAN is currently operating from a small office in the old nursing school at Princess Margaret Hospital. For the Academy to provide educational services and execute governance duties under its charter, a larger and more befitting facility will be required. In this regard, your support in any capacity, either financially or through volunteer efforts, will be vital for its realization.

The inauguration of the PHKAN is just a first step in the long journey towards administering a statutory organization dedicated to advance the nursing profession for a better and healthier Hong Kong. I shall remain committed more than ever to supporting the Academy and serving the nursing profession. And I am confident that I shall have your enthusiastic support for us to reach the many milestones together. .

Dr. LUM Shun Sui, Susie

President, The Provisional HK Academy of Nursing

局長 周一嶽

I would like to express my heartfelt congratulations to the establishment of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN) and the conferment of over 1500 Fellows on 12 May 2012! I had the privilege to witness the historical pathway of the formation of the PHKAN since the initial effort that started in 2002. A group of dedicated nurse leaders in Hong Kong have been working diligently and faithfully to achieve a common goal, that is, the establishment of a HKAN (Hong Kong Academy of Nursing) with statutory status. The establishment of PHKAN is a step moving closer to this goal. This movement is important in three ways. First, with the advancement of health care and the increasing complexity of illness pattern, we need a team of health care professionals who possess specialized and high level knowledge and skills. The medical doctors have already developed a mature system for training, accreditation and governing specialty medical practices. Nurses, who work as partners with doctors in providing comprehensive care to patients from disease treatment to rehabilitation, should also be equipped with relevant advanced nursing knowledge and skills to form a strong health care team. Second, the public has high expectations on patient service. And rightly so, health care is a matter of life and death. The structured training and accreditation of nursing specialty practice helps to protect the public by ensuring that the services they receive are delivered by recognized trained competent practitioners. Third, Hong Kong is an international city. If we wish to maintain our competitive edges in the world, we must excel in all aspects including economic development as well as human services. Advanced nursing practice is well supported with postgraduate education, legal protection of the title and clear defined career pathway in developed countries. The establishment of the PHKAN, and hopefully not too long the HKAN, is a correct and necessary move for nurses and Hong Kong at large.

I encourage all the nurses in Hong Kong, under the leadership of the 14 specialty colleges and the PHKAN, to help build a healthier and stronger Hong Kong! Best wishes with the success of the PHKAN in the years to come!

Inauguration of the Provisional HK Academy of Nursing

It gives me great pleasure to extend my warmest congratulations to the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing on its inauguration – an event that marks a major milestone in the development of nursing in Hong Kong. I also wish to offer my thanks and appreciation to nurses in Hong Kong and around the world in celebration of International Nurses Day.

Nursing practice is the very essence of primary health care. Nurses are on the front lines in the fight against disease in our community and play a pivotal role in risk reduction, medical preparedness, acute response and recovery work. Over the years, numerous patients have been restored to health and comforted in illness by the caring, compassionate and expert actions of nurses in Hong Kong.

With advances in technology and changing socio-demographic dynamics placing increased expectations on Hong Kong's nursing community, it is essential that nursing professionals strive to extend their knowledge and skills to better equip themselves for new challenges. The Academy will play a vital role in the important mission of promoting and recognizing excellence in nursing and in fostering closer collaboration between nurses and other healthcare professionals by facilitating the development of specialist nursing practice and education.

I am confident that with the concerted efforts of its council members, the Academy will achieve outstanding results in driving the advancement of nursing knowledge and the development of a world-class nursing workforce in Hong Kong.

Inauguration of the Provisional HK Academy of Nursing

I would like to convey my heartfelt congratulations to the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN) on its inauguration. It is most appropriate that this achievement comes on the International Nurses Day – a worldwide celebration of the invaluable work and accomplishments of nursing professionals. I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all nurses in Hong Kong for their innumerable contributions in the provision of outstanding public healthcare services to the community.

Continuous professional development is an international trend. It is crucial that healthcare workers keep abreast of new developments in the field and remain competent at all times. The Hospital Authority has a key role, amongst others, to develop healthcare professionals for Hong Kong. We are committed to enhancing training opportunities and facilitating career progression for our nurses, who form the backbone of our internationally acclaimed healthcare system.

The establishment of the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing marks a welcome addition to the group of professional bodies driving towards the same overarching goals in supporting Hong Kong's nurses – promoting and advancing excellence. I envisage close collaboration between the Academy and the Hospital Authority. I extend my best wishes to the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing for its future endeavours.

On behalf of the Hong Kong Academy of Medicine, it gives me great pleasure to extend my warm congratulations to the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing (PHKAN) on this auspicious occasion of its inauguration.

Nursing care is a very important and indispensable part of the healthcare services for the community in every country. We have over 40,000 registered and enrolled nurses in Hong Kong. As other healthcare professionals, nurses need to be well trained and carry out life-long learning as long as they are in the profession, in order to maintain good standard of their services to society. I am glad to see the formation of PHKAN whose objectives, among others, are to promote the advancement of the art and science of nursing and to foster the development of continuing nursing education. With these noble objectives, PHKAN could certainly contribute to the improvement of healthcare in our community.

I would also like to pay tribute to the members of the PHKAN Preparatory Committee who have been working very hard since 2007 to plan and prepare for the formation of PHKAN. Without their dedication and efforts, we would not be able to see the birth of PHKAN.

On this special occasion, I congratulate the Hong Kong Academy of Nursing again, and wish to extend to them my best wishes for every success in its future endeavors.

Ms. CHEUNG Suk Man, Lydia

I wish to extend my heart-felt congratulation and appreciation to all who contributed to the formation of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing Limited (PHKAN) at this important moment of inauguration.

Hong Kong has begun its direction and journey to nursing specialization since 1991 with the concerned effort of the then Hospital Services Department and Department of Health. The clinical career path of nurses has progressed from the establishment of nurse specialist posts in 1992 to a higher level of nurse consultant post in 2008. This cornerstone of establishing the PHKAN certainly marks the come of age of the nursing specialization in Hong Kong.

The advanced nursing practice gears towards meeting the ever escalating societal needs of the ageing population and evolving chronic diseases as well as the transformation from revolutionary medical technology. It is timely and essential for Hong Kong to have an Academy of Nursing to safeguard the quality of advanced nursing practice, to concert the multispecialty efforts for the betterment of the health for all and to lead nursing at the forefront of global excellence.

At this important International Nurses Day, we profess to uphold our healing and caring culture. I am confident that the PHKAN will be the momentum for a quantum leap for our profession towards quality care.

Dr. LUK Che Chung
Cluster Chief Executive, Hong Kong West Cluster
Hospital Chief Executive, Queen Mary Hospital

It is with every great pleasure that I offer my congratulations to the inauguration of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing as this symbolizes the professional development of nursing in Hong Kong.

Having been in the health care sector for more than three decades, I have witnessed the transformation and development of our medical services. Being a major partner in health care industry, nurses have worked hand in hand with doctors and allied health professionals to provide high-quality clinical services to our patients. Nursing colleagues always serve patients enthusiastically and professionally with their caring hearts, their technical skills together with scientific and inquisitive minds. No matter how busy they are, they put patients first. I highly appreciate that nursing staff all endeavour to provide the best clinical services to our patients, and I am very much thankful and proud to have our nurses with us.

Having worked for the Academy of Medicine myself for sixteen years, I understand very much the implication of setting up the Academy of Nursing. The inauguration of the PHKAN is by far the most important milestone in the nursing professional development. Nursing in Hong Kong has gone a long way since 1893, when the Nethersole Nursing School was first founded by the London Mission. At the beginning, nurses were trained through a system of apprenticeship. It lasted for almost a century until the establishment of the Hospital Authority in 1990. Since then, we have moved major steps towards promoting nursing excellence through higher level of professional education, training and development. Nursing nowadays entails the heart of care pivoted by professionalism. Nurses have become the pillar of quality in health care. And now in 2012, we are most delighted to celebrate the inauguration of the Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing. Congratulations!

Ms. Lydia CHEUNG

The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing has admitted Ms. Lydia Cheung, JP as Honorary Fellow. Ms. Cheung was the first Nursing Director in Hong Kong back in the 1980's. She studied in a US School of Nursing in Guangzhou during the world war period (1944-48). Upon graduation, Ms. Cheung started nursing in QMH as an auxiliary nurse in 1949 and retired as Nursing Director of the Medical & Health Department in 1987. She worked her way up from getting the nursing registration, followed by midwifery training, then administration after her extensive clinical practice in QMH OT and USU, KH, QEH and Tsan Yuk. In early 70's, shortly after becoming CNO of QMH, she was deployed to HQ to deal with nurse union issues. Subsequently she had created the Nursing Director and 3 Regional Nursing Officer positions with the regionalization of health care services in Hong Kong. During her services as Nursing Director, Ms. Cheung had commissioned Tuen Mun Hospital and pioneered Nurse Counselor for psychiatric nurses and the subsequent change of psychiatric nursing education in HK. After her retirement, Ms. Cheung is now living in Canada with frequent visits to Hong Kong. Her aspiration in nursing is the basis of proper nursing with dignity and respect.

Ms. Rose CHEN

The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing has admitted Ms. Lydia Cheung, JP as Honorary Fellow. Ms. Chen succeeded Ms. Lydia Cheung as Nursing Director in 1988 and retired soon after the establishment of the Hospital Authority in 1992. Ms. Chen started her nurse training in QMH in 1951 and was specialized in Theatre Nursing. Upon her return from the UK, she designed training programs for theatre nurses in 1959 which marked the start of early specialist nurse training. She then became a nurse administrator and commissioned the Princess of Wales Hospital (PWH) and became its Chief Nursing Officer in 1983. Shortly after the establishment of PWH, Ms. Chen was promoted to Regional Nursing Officer and later as Nursing Director in 1988. Throughout the years, the Nursing Director had been the ex-officio member of the Hong Kong Nursing Board (i.e. Nursing Council of HK) and HK Midwives Board (i.e. Midwives Council of Hong Kong). In 1988, the Director of Health Dr. Thong had formally handed over the chairmanship to nurses, and Ms. Rose Chen became the first elected Chairman of the Hong Kong Nursing Board and Chairman of the Hong Kong Midwives Board from 1988 until her retirement in 1992. Autonomy had also come with accountability - Ms. Chen was the first nurse attending the LegCo meeting and answering nursing related issues at the meeting.

Ms. Margaret WONG, MBE

The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing has admitted Ms. Margaret Wong as Honorary Fellow. Ms. Wong started her nurse training in 1954 in QMH. After graduation, Ms. Wong had worked in a number of hospitals, Tsan Yuk Hospital, ex-Tang Shui Kin Hospital, Queen Elizabeth Hospital and

Inauguration of the Provisional HK Academy of Nursing

Princess Margaret Hospital. During her years as a nurse administrator, Ms. Wong had experienced changes of the health care system with unprecedented challenges: industrial actions, closure of maternity homes, influx of refugees, the change from Medical and Health Department to Department of Health and the Hospital Authority. Ms. Wong became the Nursing Director in 1992, at the midst of turbulence. Her strong leadership and perseverance had smoothed out the transition, resolved lots of conflicts, and most importantly gained the trust from both nurses and the government. Her efforts were duly recognized by the authorities resulting in increased resource allocation to the nursing sector and the creation of additional senior positions. She was also awarded MBE in 1992. With the strong request from the Director of Health, Ms. Wong extended her retirement in 1993 and served until 1997. The long service award certificate for civil servant of over 40 years of service was a deserving tribute to Ms. Wong's years of long service dedicated to the nursing profession.

Ms. Paula CHOY, JP

The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing has admitted Ms. Paula Choy, JP as Honorary Fellow. Ms. Choy began her career in nursing in 1957 when she completed her nursing and midwifery training at the Nethersole Hospital in Hong Kong. After graduation, Ms Choy went to the U.K. to further her studies in district health and nursing management. Ms. Choy became the Chief Nursing Administrator and the principal of the School of Nursing in the Nethersole Hospital and the United Christian Hospital (UCH) in 1982. During that time, Ms. Choy strived to achieve the mission of 'hospital without wall' at UCH and helped to develop the hospital into a community hospital, where community health service centers were set up in local communities to promote disease prevention, health education and health maintenance and arouse people's health consciousness. It was also at this time when community nursing was first introduced into nursing training programs, and community nursing training officially started. In 1990, the health care system in Hong Kong experienced changes, and Ms. Choy was invited by the Medical and Health Department to help with the establishment of the Hospital Authority and became a board member before her early retirement in 1992. After retirement, Ms. Choy devoted her time in enhancing the levels of health care and health care management in Mainland China. In 1998, with the support from the Health Department in Guangdong province, Ms. Choy started her first project of developing a community health service center in Ching Yuan as an extension of a local hospital in conjunction with nurses training. After years of hard work in Ching Yuan, the community health service center has now been successfully established, and this project has become the model case of community health service center set up in other cities in China. Now the project has been recognized by the World Health Organization (WHO) of Western Pacific Region and the Health Bureau of China. Over the past 50 years, Ms. Choy has made significant contributions to the nursing profession both in Hong Kong and Mainland China, and it is her philosophy to continue sharing her experiences and knowledge with other people, because she believes that 'it is more blessed to give than to receive'.

Ms. Moyna WONG

The Provisional Hong Kong Academy of Nursing has admitted Ms. Moyna Wong as Honorary Fellow. Ms. Wong started her nurse training in QMH in 1951. After graduation in 1953, she studied midwifery in Kowloon Hospital and completed the certified midwife training in UK. Upon return to HK from her no-pay study leave, she resigned from the Government and joined the HK Sanatorium and Hospital in 1958 and started the new maternity service. In 1960, Ms. Wong moved to Kwong Wah Hospital where she stayed until her retirement as the Chief Nursing Officer of the five Tung Wah Groups of Hospitals in 1993. During her 33 and a half years of service in KWH, Ms. Wong had initiated numerous training programs, such as premature baby care training and many specialist training programs for nurses. To meet service demands, Ms. Wong had introduced many nursing services, including antenatal classes, intensive care, renal, orthopaedic, geriatric, and community health. Apart from hospital services, Ms. Wong had initiated the Well Women's Clinic in 1990 which aimed at providing one-stop screening service for all common cancer conditions for women. With the establishment of the Hospital Authority in 1990, Ms. Wong had worked closely with staff groups and hospital administration to smoothen the transition of management hand-over to the HA. Upon her retirement in 1993, Ms. Wong devoted herself in the setting up of a nursing degree program in HKU SPACE. Two years later, the BSN program established its firm footing and was incorporated into the Faculty of Medicine. She has left the service in 1996.
